CLAIMS 1,2,5,7-12,17-22,25 AND 27-35 ARE PENDING

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

It was well known in the art at the time of the invention to score, rank, cluster, and datamine documents on the basis of their components, generally words or phrases. Vaithyanathan et al (Vana), US 5,857,179 provides an exemplary example of such operations, and teaches the use of sentences in document analysis [COL 10 lines 62-65], but only as examples of documents, not as document components. Vana further removes stop words and other extraneous elements of a document [COL 5 lines 20-35] but this does not conform to removal of "dirty text" as noted below.

Domini et al (domini), US 6,085,206 extracts the sentences of a document and removes dirty text, an operation that corresponds to correction of both spelling and grammar [COL 9 lines 43-48]. Domini allows the user to correct the dirty text [FIG 7] one sentence at a time. However, Domini does not datamine the claimed document, score and rank each sentence, and remove computer code and/or tables from a document.

The particular combinations of these various operations in the claims are neither anticipated nor suggested by the prior art of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
